

alexkaufman.live

home shows blog

standup comic/former physicist

About

After growing up in over a dozen cities in the US and abroad, Alex Kaufman began doing stand-up during his college years in Tacoma, in the process founding the now iconic Bob's Comedy Jive. He then moved to New York before ending up in Bozeman, Montana, to get a PhD in theoretical gravity – and then procrastinated so hard he accidentally started the production company, Bone Dry Comedy. Today, Bone Dry runs a circuit of shows bringing the likes of Amy Miller, Billy Wayne Davis, Kate Willett, and dozens of other headliners to multiple cities in Montana.

Since then, he's featured for Kyle Kinane, Sean Patton, and more, and performed at festivals including Finger Lakes Comedy Festival, Mutiny Radio Comedy Festival, and Loons on the Lake. You can catch him throughout Montana, and at clubs, festivals, and shows around the country.

Social Media

facebook

instagram

Press

- Bone Dry is making Montana's comedy desert bloom
- From Physics to ... Comedy?

Clips

- 7 Minute Set
- 25 Minute Set

Photos

